PAYING TELLER MISSING.

Leander Bosch of Suspended Bank of Minnesota Can't Be Found, Chicago, Dec. 29 .- A special from St

Paul, Minn., says: Leander Bosch, paying teller of the suspended Bank of Minnesota, has dis-appeared. He was last seen a few hours after the bank suspended last Tuesday. Mr. Bosch prepared Thursday to place his accounts in the hands of the public examiner. When the receiver took charge, however, he was informed that an item in the accounts of the paying teller could not be satisfactorily understood without a personal explanation from Mr. Bosch.

THE EVIDENCE PLEADING FOR LICENSES

in Held-Up Cases. *

MANY APPLICANTS PRESENT

Some Merely Guilty of Technical Violations of the Law-James F. Counor Charged With Distributing Immoral Cards Dice-Throwing Brought Against A. R. Appler.

The excise board held a session today for he hearing of cases in which saloonkeepers were cited to appear to show cause why their applications for license should not be disapproved-

James F. Connor, of No. 343 Pennsylvania avenue, was charged with selling to intoxi cated persons, and also with having his bar open on Sunday for the purpose of having it cleansed-

A more serious charge was that Connor distributed among his customers a series of cards strongly suggestive of immoral-ity, a sample of each being before the board. The matter had been first called to the attention of the members by an anonymous correspondent, who said that while 'didn't run no gospet toill," and what he didn't know about morality and decency "would probably fill many volumes," he strongly protested against Mr. Connor's

The restaurant keeper was defended by Mr. Frank P. Madigan, who said that his client had given out but few of his cards before being advised against circulating them, and that all had been destroyed. Such method of advertising is in vogue in other cities, Mr. Connor said, and he had thoughtlessly adopted it, but had discontimed it and would offend no more.

One Offense Enough,

Attorney Shoemaker, of the Anti-Saloon League, contended that a single offense of such a character against moral sentiment sufficient cause for the rejection of the license.

Several applicants were next called who had against them charges of technical violations, as failure to properly expose their bars from the street, and these were oon disposed of.

A. R. Appler, of No. 3219 M street, who was represented by Mr. M. P. Sullivan, was charged with permitting the use of dice as a means of deciding "the drinks," and also of frequently failing to properly ex-pose the interior of his bar-"thirty times," the police report showed.

The defense was that the dice-throwing was in no sense a gambling affair. A friend of his, Mr. Copperthite, was in his saloon and was shaking the box as a mere pastime When told to quit it, the friend did so, and it had never been repeated. The windows Mr. Appler said, had been only partially obstructed, but not so much as to obscure the view, and when his attention was called to it he removed the obstruction

Mr. Copperthite was present and substantiated all that had been said in extens ation of the dice-throwing, assuming all of the responsibility bimself, and insisting that there were no stakes involved in the

Mr. Willige's son appeared and filed a written answer to the charges, explaining that there never had been a willful violation by him of the law since he began business in 1869, and that his intention is, and has been, to conduct his business in strict conformity with the regulations. The protest, he said, was more forced than

Mr. Shoemaker, for the Anti-Saloon League, noted that the applicant had never obtained the signatures to his petition for license, as required by law, that they should have been of residents in the adjoining

William P. Cole, proprietor of he Thyson House, at No. 1503 Seventh street northwest, had to answer to the charge of permitting card playing in his personality. He explained that two guests, friends of his, each an expert cribbage player, met at his house one evening, and to determine who was the better, repaired to a rear room and played a game. It was against his orders, Mr. Cole said, and this vas substantiated by the two gentlemen, Messrs. Shields and Thorn, whose ac

He was nine times an aggressor in this particular, according to the report in this case. Oyster Dredgers Set Adrift in a Snowstorm.

Three of Them Told Their Wretched Story to Sanitary Officer Frank. Their Condition Pitiable.

When Sanitary Officer Frank reached hi office this morning he found another oyster dredger in distress waiting for him, making a total of seventeen of these poor crea tures who have applied to the police for aid since Monday before last.

This latest caller bore many marks of the rough usage he claimed to have received at the hands of an inhuman captain. He gave his name as Henry C. Rice, about twenty-six years of age, and by trade is a newspaper compositor.

Rice is an intelligent fellow, and said he shipped at Baltimore on the oyster dredging schooner Escort, Capt. Alfred "We were treated worse than galley-slaves -half-fed, cursed and otherwise matreated. On last Tuesday morning at 1 o'clock, during a blinding snow and sleet storm, the captain aroused us from our slumbers, and told us to get ready to go ashore. Five of us were driven into small boats and rowed to the desolate beach. where we were left to freeze and die, so far as the hard-hearted captain was con cerned."

Rice described how the described dredger built a bonfire in the woods to keep from perishing in the snowstorm. The captain's surpose in putting the five men ashore, h aid, was to beat them out of their wages Although Rice only has the ferefinger and thumb remaining on his right hand, he claims to be an expert typesetter. Mr. Frank gave him a railroad ticket to Baitinore, and he promises to lay his case before the Maryland authorities.

Henry Popke, a German, twenty-two years of age, called on Mr. Frank late yesterday afternoon. He, too, was a victim of inhuman dredgers, and was little more than a living skeleton, as a result of the brutal treatment he was subjected to on an oyster pungy down the Potomac.

Like Rice, he had also been put ashore at night, and left to the mercy of the elements, without food or money, although the captain without food or money, although the captain.

National Headquarters Come to the City Next Week.

HOME NOT YET SELECTED

Committee Appointed to Make the Transfer Will Be Here in a Few Days-Official Organ of the Body to Be Published Here-Important Onestions Up.

The coming week promises to be a very active one in local labor circles.

All the local onlons affiliated with the American Federation of Labor are in high spirits over the fact that the national headquarters will be located here within the next ten or fifteen days, and feel confident that the presence of the national officers will have a tendency to end all strife among the local labor bodies. The Central Labor Union, which, since its organization, has in a sense been going it alone, will feel that it has powerful friends close at hand, and will be in a better position to demand recognition for its affiliated unions

The lepation here of the national head quarters of the American Federation of Labor, a prominent member of the Central Labor Union said, means a great deal, not only to the laboring men of the District but also to the city in general. As in the case of the Knights of Labor, it means the expenditure, mouthly, of a large amount of money. It will be the means, also, of giving employment to a large number of unemployed printers, for it is the inten-tention of the general executive board to publish and issue their official organ, the Federationist, in this city.

A Committee Coming.

At the meeting of the national conver tion, a committee, consisting of President Samuel Gompers, Vice President P. J. Mc Guire, of Philadelphia, and James Dun can, of Baltimore, were appointed with full power to act in all matters pertaining to the removal of headquarters from Indianapolis to this city. These gentlemen are expected to arrive in this city within a few days to arrange for the immediate removal of all the paraphermalia to Washington. As yet no place has been definitely selected as the home for the national headquarters, but it is understood that the local leaders will use their influence to have the general office located the central northwest part of the city. Another matter which is receiving con iderable attention at the hands of organ zed labor is the semiannual election of officers of the local Federation of Lator, which is to be held the second week in January. It has been rumored that the present incumbent, Mr. James F. McHugh, who has been four times honored with the residency, would not stand for re-election. President McHugh has frequently denied this rumor, and though at previous elec-tions be received practically the usaniour vote of the Federation, it is under tood that a determined effort will be made to turn him down this time.

The District Assembly.

Still another question which is agitation he leaders, and also the rank and file of the Knights of Lator, is the result of the conference between the representatives of District Assembly No. 66, K. of L. and the general officers. These two bod-ies, it is understood, have been in close communication since the adjournment of the general assembly, but as yet no compromise has been effected. A final confer-ence, it is reported, will be held tomorrow night, when both parties will submit final terms of agreement.

In the event of no settlement being reached any of three things may happen—two of the most prominent members of District Assembly 66 may be expelled; District Assembly 66 may be expelled or suspended, o the general secretary may construe the mandates of the General Assembly so as to nake neither of these courses necessary.
